From the Inside Flap

For all the drawbacks and pitfalls, I still believe that the writer's life is the best life of all. You never have to wear a watch, much less a suit and tie. You don't have to carry a cell phone. Your daily commute is a stroll down the hall. You can take off to be at your kids' ball game without asking the boss. You can set your own hours, work a night shift if you want. You can write in your pajamas, your underwear, or your birthday suit (I'm partial to blue jeans and a tee-shirt). When you are a writer, you really can sleep late, do what you enjoy, and yes, you can make a ton of money.

And you know what the best part of it is? People in ordinary jobs can't wait for retirement; writers can't imagine why anyone would want to stop working. I don't know about you, but I intend to keep writing until they find me slumped over my keyboard at age 102, with the words "The End" glimmering on my computer screen.
